Dawn Wright

I teach a distant education course for OSU extended campus that is about geographic information systems which is pretty much about maps that are in computers and I enjoy teaching the class because I give lectures to my students on video tapes and they take those video tapes and play them in their own living rooms. So for them that is the classroom, they can also do their laboratory exercises if they have a computer in their home and so everything is within their own comfort zone.